

Agency Priority Goals (APG) & Cross Agency Priority (CAP) Goals

Overview

In addition to driving policy, communications, budget, and legislation activities, federal agency leaders need to focus on delivering results by improving implementation. To do this, the White House and agency heads identify a handful of goals to achieve. There are two types of goals that the Federal Government focuses on: Agency Priority Goals and Cross Agency Priority Goals.

Agency Priority Goals

An Agency Priority Goal (APG) is a specific, challenging goal that can be accomplished in a two-year period, offering a high priority opportunity for improvement. Agency leaders select a small handful of these goals, identify responsible officials, and review progress on them on a quarterly basis, effectively motivating agency staff to work harder and smarter to improve performance and ensuring accountability for outcomes. Here are three examples:

The Department of Commerce will improve the useful lead time of its weather forecast model guidance to 9.5 days which will enable more accurate, consistent forecasts, and warnings for high-impact and extreme weather events.

Improve Veterans' health outcomes and experiences by consolidating all VA-purchased care programs into one modernized community care program. By September 30, 2019, the percent of Veterans who are satisfied with receiving community care will increase from 73% (FY17Q4) to 79%.

USDA will reduce the number of children in food insecure households by 10% from a baseline of 15.8 million (2013) to 14.2 million.

Cross Agency Priority Goals

Cross-Agency Priority (CAP) Goals are a tool used to accelerate progress on a limited number of priority areas where implementation requires active collaboration between multiple agencies. CAP Goals help agencies overcome organizational barriers to achieve better performance than they can on their own. Set or revised every four years, CAP Goals include outcome-oriented goals that cover a limited number of crosscutting policy areas. CAP Goals also include management goals focused on management improvements across the federal government. To date, CAP Goals have:

- Saved taxpayers over $17 billion during the last two years through better pricing, reduced demand, and admin savings (Category Management CAP Goal)
- Enabled adoption of cost-effective technology solutions: 75% of civilian CFO Act agencies' inboxes use cloud-based solutions (IT Modernization CAP Goal)
- Reduced inventory of federal government background checks by 40%, within the past year (Security Clearance CAP Goal)
